

MARTHA STEWART-INSPIRED ELEMENTS AT TWIN LAKES

Together with KB Home, Martha Stewart is unveiling an all-new, first ever concept in home-building: KB Home's Twin Lakes: New homes created with Martha Stewart in the town of Cary, North Carolina. The beautiful model homes are based on the architecture, spirit, and style of Martha's own homes in New York, Connecticut and Maine and represent her personal preferences. These style elements are appealing, convenient, and reasonable for all homeowners. Featured elements include wainscoting, picture frame molding, attractive built-in cabinetry and shelving, colorful paint packages and more. Below are just a few examples:

Exterior design and community features

- Exterior styles inspired by Martha's own homes, including distinctive stone work, cedar shake-style wood shingles, classic Colonial detailing, as well as attractive entry doors, windows and columns.
- Variety of landscaping designs created by Martha's gardener for each style of home design.
- Twenty different floor plans for 1- and 2- story homes ranging from 1,550 to more than 4,000 square feet.
- Homesites span more than 150 acres including parks, ponds, and walking trails.
- Colonial style community clubhouse for gathering, socializing, and entertaining.
- Community garden offering plots allowing homeowners to bring their families together to plant their choice of vegetables, flowers, and herbs.
- A sparkling 7,000 square foot swimming pool.
- Lighted tennis court and volleyball court for homeowner fitness and recreation.
